"I was twenty-one when I became a Christian, and had just started my work on an M.S. in Biology at the University of Louisville. Although I had grown up "going to church", to this point I knew very little about the Bible. I knew nothing of the controversy surrounding the Biblical account of Creation. I was just a Christian in college who loved nature and life. Thus began a lifelong study of the origins of life, and mankind, that was to change me forever. A study that has shown me that no "fact" of science has ever set aside a word of God's revelation. It was to prove to me what is "that good and perfect and acceptable will of God" in every sense. Come let me share with you what I have discovered in the pursuit of harmonizing the "works of God" with the "words of God".
